Last year we invited Arik, from Education for Life and Learning for Well- being, to help us create mutual understandings and agreements between the teachers and parents of our school.

He has supported our team of teachers and parents in an extremely professional manner by holding sessions with both groups separately and together. Arik understands the complex issues of cooperation within schools and makes a precise analysis so that we were able to clearly define the challenges we faced and a way to overcome them. His approach is not standard but tailored to the specific request for help and the context of the school. He knows how to generate a feeling of safety in his meetings so that the participants dare to be open and feel heard.

Thanks to his passionate and involved approach, he knows how to mobilize support and motivation to initiate a process of change, is a speaker who captivates his audience and knows how to get through to the participants with humour and empathy.

In light of the work we started last year, we have succeeded in improving communication within the school and have become a place where parents and teachers like to come and where students learn and develop best. Arik helped to create the basis for this and we are looking forward to continuing the work with him in the future.
